Chicago, IL (CHI)
Union Station was completed in 1925 by a consortium of three railroads (and one tenant), replacing the earlier 1881 Union Depot, which replaced an even earlier 1858 station on the site. In 1991, work was completed on a $32 million passenger facilities improvement project. On May 1, 2002, the station was finally designated a Chicago Landmark. Since 1972, all Amtrak services in Chicago originate and terminate at Chicago Union Station. Union Station currently serves seventeen routes. In 2015, 3,295,630 passengers passed through the station and provided revenue valued at $197,464,450.

* Value Added - enhancement a company or business gives its product or service before providing it to customers(value of the final outputs from Amtrak minus the value of the inputs such as raw materials).
 Local riders are defined as riders that boarded or alighted an Amtrak train in the state. May include out of state passengers transferring trains in the state.
 Rail Passenger Mile - passenger rail miles determined by multiplying the total number of passengers by the total number of miles traveled.
Amtrak operates 56 trains a day in Illinois, a mix of long-distance and corridor services. There are 30 stations along these routes. Chicago is the state’s busiest station, serving as a hub for trains going East, West, North, and South. The Chicago-Carbondale Route (Illini/Saluki), Chicago-Quincy (Il Zephyr/Carl Sandburg), and the Lincoln Service, and Hiawatha routes are supported by the state. Chicago is also the site of a maintenance facility. Nearly 90 percent of the population lives within 30 miles of an Amtrak station. Despite minimal overall population growth, ridership in Illinois is up 11 percent over the past six years. Among Amtrak riders in the state, 9 percent report that they would not have made the trip but for the availability of Amtrak service.

Over 1,480 state residents are employed by Amtrak, at stations, on trains and at various maintenance facilities in the state. These latter facilities include Chicago’s Brighton Park Maintenance Facility, Chicago Coach Yard, and Amtrak’s Central Division. Central Division staff in the Claims, Diversity, Engineering, Environmental, Government Affairs and Corporate Communications, Human Capital, Mechanical Operations, Passenger Services, Police, and Safety departments support the operation of Amtrak trains in 18 Midwestern states. Collectively, these workers earned almost $107 million in wages and salaries.

In addition to the Illinois workers it employs, Amtrak spent over $180 million on purchases of goods and services in Illinois in FY15.
