Dallas, TX (DAL)

Union Station opened in 1916 and was intended to secure a shared terminal for the seven railroads then serving the city. Dallas was without passenger rail service for several years until Amtrak began service in 1974. The station was renovated in 1978 as part of an urban redevelopment project. A second round of renovations was just completed. Today as an intermodal station, Union Station also hosts the Dallas Area Rapid Transit light rail and Trinity Railway Express commuter rail. The station serves the Texas Eagle route. In 2016, 42,118 passengers passed through the station and provided revenue valued at $3,281,158.

* Value Added - enhancement a company or business gives its product or service before providing it to customers (value of the final outputs from Amtrak minus the value of the inputs such as raw materials).
 Local riders are defined as riders that boarded or alighted an Amtrak train in the state. May include out of state passengers transferring trains in the state.
 Rail Passenger Mile - passenger rail miles are determined by multiplying the total number of passengers by the total number of miles traveled.
Texas is served by 3 train routes, the Heartland Flyer, the Sunset Limited, and the Texas Eagle, and 19 stations. Fort Worth is the state’s busiest station, followed by San Antonio and Dallas. The Heartland Flyer route is partially supported by the state, providing daily service from Fort Worth. The Texas Eagle also operates daily and the Sunset Limited operates tri-weekly.

An estimated 69 percent of the population lives within 30 miles of an Amtrak rail or bus station.

Among Amtrak riders in the state, 11 percent report that they would not have made the trip but for the availability of Amtrak service. The service provides important mobility and access needs for a number of residents. Moreover, the service is used by the full spectrum of income groups across the state’s population.

Amtrak purchased $75 million of goods and services from the Texas economy in FY16. In addition 192 Texans worked for Amtrak, collectively earning over $16 million in wages and salaries.
