PRIIA Section 209 and Agreements

The Passenger Rail Investment and Improvement Act of 2008 (P.L. 110-432) required, by October 2013, an equitable arrangement of cost sharing between Amtrak and state or public agency partners that provide funding for short-distance, intercity train services. Agreements were reached with all parties, including in Maine, by the deadline, and the services continued to run without interruption. Amtrak operates the Downeaster under contract with the State of Maine's Northern New England Passenger Rail Authority (NNEPRA).

About the Downeaster

December 14, 2001 marked the inaugural run of the Downeaster, restoring passenger rail service between Boston and Portland after an absence of over 35 years. The service features five daily round-trips between Portland and Boston North Station, with eight intermediate stops: Woburn, Haverhill, Exeter, Durham-UNH, Dover, Wells, Saco, and in season, Old Orchard Beach. Starting in Fiscal 2013 (see below) additional service from Portland to Freeport and Brunswick is in place. The Downeaster had over 500,000 passengers in Fiscal 2016.

On November 1, 2012, Downeaster service was extended to Freeport and Brunswick. This project was funded by state funding and by a $35-million federal stimulus grant in 2010. It included rehabilitation of 26.4 miles of track owned by Pan Am Railways, upgrades to numerous wayside signals, and improvements to 36 highway grade crossings. On November 21, 2016, the Northern New England Passenger Rail Authority opened its new train layover facility in Brunswick and added a third round trip between Brunswick and Boston. The $13-million, 60,000-square-foot facility, which is longer than two football fields, will allow the rail authority to begin the overnight servicing of Downeaster passenger trains.

Station Improvements

The Saco Transportation Center was dedicated on February 27, 2009, replacing a platform and shelter. The $2.2-million building, which opened for regular service in March, was built by the city and also houses the Biddeford-Saco Chamber of Commerce and a QuikTrak ticketing machine. It is powered by a wind turbine and its temperature is controlled by a geothermal energy system.

New Stations

Brunswick: The new station is in the Brunswick Visitors Center building, 16 Station Avenue. It also houses two restaurants and other businesses serving the community. Long-term parking (two hours or more) is free and located adjacent to the station, and also nearby at 86 Union Street. A Quik-Trak machine in the station waiting area offers ticketing services. The Station/Visitors Center is conveniently located downtown and provides easy, walking access to the Bowdoin College campus, restaurants, and hotels.

Freeport: The new station is at 19 Depot Street. The Visitors Center, which is the tower at the entrance to the parking lot and platform, has a passenger waiting area and Quik-Trak machine. There is free parking in the station lot and in the garage across the street. Many local hotels offer free station pick-up.

The station is just a block from the L. L. Bean campus of stores and just steps from hundreds of national retailers, name-brand outlets, and locally owned boutiques, all in a 19th-century Maine village setting.

Kennebunk: NNEPRA plans to begin stopping the Downeaster in Kennebunk on a seasonal basis possibly by late 2017 or early 2018, restoring passenger train service to the town for the first time in half a century. The train would stop at the old Boston & Maine Railroad station on Depot Street, which the town is currently undertaking a rehabilitation project. Located just south of downtown, the former station has not been used as such since the last B&M service to Portland ran on January 3, 1965.
